MATANOS L'EVYONIM

Do you want to experience real joy this Purim?

Researchers from Harvard Business School conducted a controlled study in which participants were given money and instructed either to spend it on themselves or on someone else. Those who spent the money on others consistently reported greater happiness than those who used it for personal purchases, regardless of income level. In a separate large International survey, researchers analyzed data from over 200,000 people across 136 countries and found that individuals who gave to charity were measurably happier than those who did not.

The relationship held true across cultures, wealth levels, and continents, suggesting that generosity itself contributes to human well being Well before these studies were conducted, the Rambam taught this to us. The Rambam writes, "It is preferable for a person to increase gifts to the poor rather than expand the Purim feast or increase Mishloach Manos to friends, for there is no greater and more glorious joy than bringing joy to the hearts of the poor, the orphans, the widows, and the converts" (Hilchos Megillah 2:17). Many in our own community are struggling immensely. For them, Purim is a date on the calendar filled with hope, hope for a bit of help and relief.
